The sun bathes Earth in ample energy to fulfill all the world's power needs many times over. Like a big power plant in the sky, without the pollution. It doesn't give off carbon dioxide emissions. It won't run out. And it's free.

The sun's light (and all light) contains energy. Usually, when light hits an object the energy turns into heat, like the warmth you feel while sitting in the sun. But when light hits certain materials the energy turns into an electrical current instead, which we can then harness for power.
